

Privacy Policy for JLIVE Journals

JLIVE Journals is committed to protecting the privacy and personal information of its authors, reviewers, editors, readers, and website visitors. This Privacy Policy outlines how personal data is collected, used, stored, and protected in connection with our publishing services.

Information We Collect

JLIVE Journals collects personal and professional information necessary for manuscript submission, peer review, publication, and communication. This may include names, email addresses, institutional affiliations, contact details, ORCID identifiers, academic credentials, and billing information where applicable. In addition, manuscript files, supplementary materials, editorial correspondence, and publication records may also be collected.

Use of Information

The information collected is used solely for the purposes of managing manuscript submissions, conducting peer review, making editorial decisions, publishing accepted articles, communicating with users, processing payments where applicable, and improving journal operations and website performance.

Data Sharing and Disclosure

Personal and manuscript-related information may be shared with editors, reviewers, indexing agencies, and service providers only to the extent necessary for the publication process. JLIVE Journals does not sell, rent, or trade personal information to third parties. Information may also be disclosed if required by law or legal obligation.

Data Retention

JLIVE Journals retains personal information, manuscripts, and related correspondence for as long as necessary to fulfill editorial, legal, and archival requirements. Published content forms part of the permanent scholarly record and may be retained indefinitely.

Cookies and Website Analytics

The journal website may use cookies and analytics tools to improve functionality, maintain user sessions, and analyze website traffic. These technologies help enhance user experience and optimize journal services.

Data Security

JLIVE Journals implements appropriate administrative, technical, and organizational measures to protect personal information against unauthorized access, loss, misuse, or disclosure. While every effort is made to secure data, no online system can guarantee absolute security.

Author Rights

Authors and registered users have the right to access, update, or request correction of their personal information. Requests for deletion of data may be considered where legally and operationally feasible, except where retention is required for publication or legal purposes.

Third-Party Links and Services

The journal website may contain links to external databases, indexing platforms, or third-party services. JLIVE Journals is not responsible for the privacy practices or content of such external websites.

Confidentiality

All submitted manuscripts and reviewer communications are treated as confidential documents. Personal information shared during the editorial and review process will be used only for legitimate publishing purposes.

Policy Updates

JLIVE Journals reserves the right to revise or update this Privacy Policy at any time to reflect changes in legal requirements, journal operations, or data handling practices. Updated versions will be published on the official website.